Donna Abbati was born and bred in Port Kembla and works in a range of medias, with her inspiration coming from nature, science and the natural world.

She was interested in art at an early age, and specialises in cross-stitch works, gourds and jewellery, featuring her hand-made beads. Donna grows gourds in her garden, prepares and decorates them, inspired by scientific imaging, such as microscopic cell images, anatomy and other scientific illustrations.

Donna's hand-made beads, are made from repurposed decorative papers and air-dried paper clay, which she incorporates into jewellery, including bracelets and earrings.

Donna has worked fulltime as a Nuclear Medicine Technologist at Wollongong Hospital for the last three decades.
